

THE ROADMAP

Shared responsibility and global solidarity
for AIDS, TB and malaria in Africa

19TH SUMMIT OF THE AFRICAN UNION

Addis Ababa | Ethiopia

15-16 July | 2012

NOW IS THE TIME FOR AFRICA TO TAKE THE LEAD ON AIDS, TB AND MALARIA

The African Union is taking the lead on transforming the face of the AIDS, TB and malaria responses – through shared responsibility and global solidarity.

Hope abounds as the world surveys progress in the AIDS response. In 22 African countries the number of annual new HIV infections has declined by more than 25% in the last ten years. Access to antiretroviral treatment in Africa has skyrocketed - the number of Africans on treatment has increased 100-fold since a decade ago.

Yet there is no time to be complacent. The AIDS response is a long term investment – millions of Africans will need access to prevention programmes and HIV treatment for their entire lives. It is an investment that delivers returns through increased productivity, lower health and orphan care costs, dignity and hope. In this context, the overreliance of Africa's AIDS response on foreign investments, foreign drugs and foreign solutions is not sustainable.

With Africa on the rise, with emerging economies becoming critical development partners, with an enduring economic crisis and the visible limits of development approaches that fail to have national leadership at their core –

Now is the time for change.

Shared responsibility and global solidarity is on the agenda of the 19th African Union Summit – supported by a new Roadmap. Building on commitments including the 2001 Abuja Declaration and the 2010 Kampala Declaration, this Roadmap seeks to leverage the resources, activism and momentum of the AIDS response for progress across health and development through a set of practical African-sourced solutions.

Africa is now ready to advance

of shared responsibility and global solidarity
for their own solutions.
